

Attachment X

Attachment X - Bibliography for Biological Effects

1. Bassett, C.A. Fundamental and practical aspects of therapeutic uses of pulsed electromagnetic fields (PEMFs). Critical Reviews in Biomedical Engineering. 1989; 17:451-529.
2. Brain, J.D.; Kavet, R., McCormick, D.L., Poole, C., Silverman, L.B., Smith, T.J., Valberg, P.A., Van Etten, R.A., and Weaver, J.C. Childhood leukemia: electric and magnetic fields as possible risk factors. Environ Health Perspect. 2003 Jun; 111(7):962-70. Review.
3. Brusick, D.; Albertini, R.; McRee, D.; Peterson, D.; Williams, G.; Hanawalt, P., and Preston, J. Genotoxicity of radiofrequency radiation. Environmental and Molecular Mutagenesis. 1998; 32:1-16.
4. Chahal, R.; Craig, D.Q.M., and Pinney, R.J. Investigation of potential genotoxic effects of low frequency electromagnetic fields on Escherichia coli. J Pharm Pharmacol. 1993; 45:30-33.
5. Hamnerius, Y.; Rasmuson, A., and Rasmuson, B. Biological effects of high-frequency electromagnetic fields on Salmonella typhimurium and Drosophila melanogaster. Bioelectromagnetics. 1985; 6:405-14.
6. IARC classification of static and extremely low frequency electric and magnetic fields (Volume 90-80 of the IARC Monographs Series). J Radiol Prot. 2001; 21:313
7. Jacobson-Kram, D.; Tepper, J.; Kuo, P.; San, R.H.C.; Curry, P.T.; Wagner, V.O., and Putman, D.L. Evaluation of potential genotoxicity of pulsed electric and electromagnetic fields used for bone growth stimulation. Mutation Research. 1997; 388:45-57.
8. Juutilainen, J. Developmental effects of electromagnetic fields. Bioelectromagnetics Supplement. 2005; 7:S107-S115.
9. Juutilainen, J; and Lang, S. Genotoxic, carcinogenic and teratogenic effects of electromagnetic fields. Introduction and overview. Mutat Res. 1997 Dec; 387(3):165-71. Review.
10. Landesman, R.H. and Douglas, W.S. Abnormal limb regeneration in adult newts exposed to a pulsed electromagnetic field. Teratology. 1990; 42:137-45.
11. McCann, J.; Dietrich, F., and Rafferty, C. The genotoxic potential of electric and magnetic fields: an update. Mutation Research. 1998; 411:45-86.
12. McCann, J.; Kavet, R., Rafferty, C.N. Assessing the potential carcinogenic activity of magnetic fields using animal models. Environ Health Perspect. 2000 Mar; 108 Suppl 1:79-100. Review.

13. Morandi, M.A.; Pak, C.M.; Caren, R.P., and Caren, L.D. Lack of an EMF-induced genotoxic effect in the Ames assay. Live Sciences. 1996; 59(3):263-71.
14. Nakasono, S.; Ikehata, M.; Takao, K., and Saiki, H. A 50 Hz, 14mT magnetic field is not mutagenic or co-mutagenic in bacterial mutation assays. Mutation Research. 2000; 471:127-134.
15. Nishikawa, U. Biological effects of pulsing electromagnetic fields (PEMFs) on ICR mice. J Jpn Orthop Assoc. 1987; 61:1413-28
16. Schreiber, W.G.; Teichmann, E.M.; Schiffer, I.; Hast, J.; Akbari, W.; Georgi, H.; Graf, R.; Hehn, M.; Speib, H.W.; Thelen, M.; Oesch, F., and Hengstler, J.G. Lack of mutagenic and co-mutagenic effects of magnetic fields during magnetic resonance imaging. Journal of Magnetic Resonance Imaging. 2001; 14:779-88.
17. Testa, A.; Cordelli, E.; Stronati, L.; Marino, C.; Lovisolo, G.A.; Fresegna, A.M.; Conti, D., and Villani, P. Evaluation of genotoxic effect of low level 50 Hz magnetic fields on human blood cells using different cytogenetic assays. Bioelectromagnetics. 2004; 25:613-19.